We learn their special language created to reach out to someone who speaks only in images. We are plunged into a family's chaos that is yet so filled with urgency and love. Without rhetoric or pathos, we explore the confrontation between the world of adults and the world of children, between illness and normality, between institutional rigidity and human tenderness. And, we share all of Giovanna's teenage astonishment as she discovers the world of adults, the awakening of her own body, and that strange and indefinable mystery of life called love. St. Petersburg. May 1886. What would cause a talented young student from a wealthy family to shoot himself in full view of the promenading public in the Alexander Gardens?

Decadence and boredom, most likely, is what the commander of the Criminal Investigation Division of the Petersburg Police thinks, but he's curious enough to send out the newest member of the Division, Erast Fandorin, a young man of irresistible charm, to investigate. Fandorin - naïve and anxious to learn - vacillates between insanely bold bravery and full on fear as he throws himself whole-heartedly into this mystery. Murder and deception compete with duels and reckless gambling as Fandorin finds himself entangled in the web of the mysterious beauty, Amalia Bezhetskaya, a femme fatale who enjoys playing with the emotions of her many wealthy admirers. Fandorin pursues Amalia to foggy London and back, getting himself in and out of deadly escapades -- he's almost stabbed to death, finds himself forced into a game of Russian roulette, he's bound in a burlap sack and thrown in the Thames to drown, his memory is in danger of being erased forever and Amalia's ghost even returns from the dead to get her revenge. Is this all about money or are the murders and the attempts on Fandorin's life part of an international terrorist plot? Is Amalia their sirenlike ambassador? Should we suspect the British aristocrat Lady Astair, founder of a string of orphanages which have greatly benefited from the wills of the murdered men? In this nightmarish world, who can Fandorin trust? Count Zurov, Amalia's favorite lover, who challenges and kills every competitor in a duel? The overzealous Brilling, the special envoy to the Tsar who starts a brutally violent campaign against the terrorists? Are these "terrorists" even real? Or are they just a smoke screen to cover up something infinitely more ominous, a global conspiracy to dominate the world?

This is a road movie. this is a rock and roll drama, a tale that exposes the rumors surrounding a mythical festival tour (or is it just the drugs?). The cinematography is stunning, the drug taking shocking and the horror horrific, not for the faint hearted. It's a unique film capturing the true essence of the festival spirit, unlike any British film to date. This movie is the essence of a rock and roll nightmare. It's a must see for anyone who's been on the road.. and if you've not gone on tour before... after this you never will.

Attending his consecration in a bullet proof vest, Robinson has lived with death threats every day since. Love Free or Die follows Robinson from his 2008 civil union, to his rejection from the once-a-decade meeting of bishops at the Lambeth Conference, to Obama's inauguration. His presence at the Episcopal General Convention the following year challenges the church's stance on issues such as gay marriage and the consecration of gay bishops. Love Free or Die (a play on the state of New Hampshire's motto, "Live Free or Die"), not only celebrates the inspirational actions of one man, but the changing landscape of the Church.

Is spiritual bypass possible? Shot on the streets of San Francisco's Tenderloin District in a gritty documentary style, this portrait of three outsiders shows a world both decaying and beautiful, where city streets become rivers, sidewalks are bedrooms, and passersby audience to the blurry line between genius and madness, an unlikely romance and the magic simplicity of a city witnessed anew.

Unfortunately, the 14th Dalai Lama and the Tibetan people receive little political support in their drive to put an end to the Chinese brutal regime, as international governments are seemingly motivated by economic interests in China. The lack of progress toward a free, or even a truly autonomous Tibet, urges more and more young Tibetans to consider alternatives to the Dalai Lama's Middle Way Policy, a compromise on Tibet's Independence. The controversial discussion about the right strategy for achieving a free Tibet - non-violent or violent, autonomy or complete independence - is becoming more emotionally charged day by day. Monks have been leading Tibet and Tibetans for generations, not only in religious, but also in worldly matters. But monks have vows that bind them. And often those vows conflict with the needs of politics. The Tibetan movement today is divided and weakened by an ongoing argument whether the Dalai Lama's Middle Way Policy is the right strategy or not...

Reggaeton-La Clave is a fascinating musical documentary film about the similarities between two types of music genres known today as Salsa and Reggaeton. We were fortunate enough to have gathered the hottest stars of reggaeton as well as the old school greats of salsa. We have interviewed salsa icons such as Ruben Blades, Johnny Pacheco, Willie Colon, Ismael Miranda, Gilberto SantaRosa and on the reggaeton side we interviewed billboard chart - topping artists such as Julio Voltio, Tego Calderón, Hector "El Father" just to name a few. These artists all came together with the same purpose to discuss how two different styles of music can have so much in common and how their music is all composed under "La Clave," the five-note two-bar rhythm pattern which generates rhythmic measurement and is the foundation and backbone of Salsa (and all Afro-Cuban based music). They also take you on an extraordinary journey back in time to the roots that influenced all of these different types of music, which is AFRICA and its rhythm of "drums and percussion."

"Student demonstrations are raging in Lahore, as young Pakistani professor Changez Khan and a journalist, Bobby Lincoln, share a cup of tea and conversation. Princeton-educated Changez tells Lincoln of his past as a brilliant business analyst on Wall Street. He talks of the glittering future that lay before him and the beautiful and sophisticated Erica whom he was set to share that future with. But then 9/11 changes everything. Attitudes shift dramatically - his very name and face rendering him suspect. Returning to his homeland and the family to whom he is very close, he takes up a post as lecturer at the local university, a hotbed of radicalism and the new militant academia. The collegial pretense of the meeting in a Lahore teahouse, between Lincoln and Changez, slowly gives way to why the unlikely pair has gathered on a summer day --- another professor has been kidnapped by extremists, and the clock is ticking toward a deadline for his execution. Changez's family is being harassed and is in real danger. Bobby is there to listen, with an agenda of his own. As it is revealed that Lincoln is in the lions' den with the CIA, we also learn that he has a personal stake in the immediate crisis at hand. Taking us through the culturally rich and beguiling worlds of New York, Lahore and Istanbul The Reluctant Fundamentalist is an exploration of prejudice and the phenomenon of globalization that is both exhilarating and deeply unsettling."

Based on true events, CHER AMI is the story of a group of farmyard carrier pigeons that are enlisted into the Allied Homing Pigeon Corps in order to fight the Central Powers during the First World War. The story begins high above the trenches where Allied and Prussian planes are involved in a deadly dogfight. We follow one duel as one plane, guns blazing, chases another down towards the ground and through the treetops of the Argonne Forest. Here the camera diverts the audience's attention to where Red Falcon, a top ranking falcon, seems to be waiting for something or someone. Suddenly, an Allied homing pigeon appears on the horizon and the attack is on! What is happening on the battle field is paralleled by the actions amongst the animals on the farm. CHER AMI is a story of love and friendship, bravery and treachery, set against events on the French/Belgium Front, where the Allied Forces are holding back the forces of the enemy towards the end of 1918. An Allied battalion becomes trapped behind enemy lines, surrounded and bombarded by their own forces. Their only hope of escape rests in ability of the Homing Pigeon Corps to break through enemy lines with a message to the Allied commanders. Will the pigeons succeed and save the lives of not only the trapped troops but also their farm and life as they know it? Will their plans be thwarted by the presence of a traitor amongst them? To find out.....

Winter casts a very special, magical spell. It's a time for traditions and customs: snowmen come to life, Santas wander through brightly-lit Christmas markets, much to the delight of the children. But indigenous animal life pays no heed to this human idyll. For them, winter is a time of austerity. Squirrels, boars and lynx all have their own strategy for surviving the winter. But despite an amazing ability to adapt, the fight for survival is hard - and can often only be won with the help of human beings. The film takes us on a journey through wintry Germany - underscored by a childlike enthusiasm for the cold season. Snow-covered fairy-tale landscapes and touching tales about animals create a special heart-warming winter atmosphere that not even adults can escape: Contemplative, amusing and fascinating all at the same time, the film lyrically illustrates the charm of an enchanting Christmas Winter Wonderland.

Scandinavia in the year 968. Osvald, the cowardly Viking, and his brave but not too bright brother Sigtrygg, set out to avenge the murder of their father. As much as Osvald loves to be a hero, he detests putting himself at risk of any kind, and fears Perset Olale, the evil fin who murdered his father, even more. During a bar brawl, Osvald recklessly challenges the fiercest fighters in the known world, among them the murderer Perset, to a fight. It is decided the matter will be settled a tournament in the old Viking style; single combat to death on a small island. Whoever returns, wins. The next day Osvald wakes ridden with anxiety and questions: Will he become a Berserker? Will he survive this eight fighter-one survivor tournament? Will he win the heart of Hildegund, the love of his life?

But getting rehoused takes time. While they're waiting to get rehoused, a local youth is beaten to death in the stairwell. None of the 10th floor residents saw or heard anything, and it's just another sad reminder of why the area needs to be redeveloped. But one weekend their lives are shattered by automatic gunfire from a high calibre, silenced sniper rifle. Someone is in the opposite, abandoned building, shooting at them and that person is a very good shot. One by one they are shot at as they try to escape. Why is he shooting at them? Spurred on by playful jibes that he's little more than a city suit living the capitalist's dream, this frustrated amateur opera singer decides to throw an opera in his lavish country retreat. Once his friends see him belting out the notes, he feels sure it will spell the end to their shallow taunts. In fact, it might even help him win the hand of a female conductor he's been pursuing whom, it just so happens, is the first to be recruited for his showpiece.

Writer: Adam Gray, Andrew Gray

Key Cast: Colton-Harris Moore

Delivery Status: Post Production

Year of Production: 2012 Country of Origin: USA

Brilliant and troubled serial burglar Colton Harris-Moore escaped a juvenile detention facility in 2008, beginning a chase with authorities unlike any other in history. Colt has become an icon for youth rebellion and left in his wake over 100 crimes, including a half dozen stolen boats, at least 10 cars, and 5 airplanes. 90 000 "fans" around the world cheered the teenager on through Facebook. Ten original ballads about Colt have been immortalized on Youtube and book/movie deals were made while he was still on the run.

Colt is a new breed of outlaw folk hero - a pure fugitive, a runner. Though non-violent, his name will go down in history with the likes of John Dillinger and Billy The Kid.

Combining documentary elements, dramatic recreations and graphic-novel style animation, Fly Colt Fly contrasts the story of a real kid who fell into burglary to keep from starving, and his mass media doppelganger, The Barefoot Bandit. Colt's story will be told by those who have known him, his family and friends, his ex-partner stuck in prison, the social service workers that tried to help him, the journalists that followed the story, the people he stole from, the law enforcement officers and bounty hunters that chased him, and the fans that still idolize him.

As a former resident of a low-income community, Christene Browne went back to find out what had happened to some of her old friends. Formal and impromptu interviews are conducted and the community is revealed through footage and stills. A young man who currently lives in the community is also followed and interviewed. Through in-depth interviews with three people who made it out (Tony Lewis- Manger at Toronto Hydro, Lorie Stubbs - Artist/ Entrepreneur, Clement Virgo- Filmmaker) we get an insightful look into the minds of people growing up in poverty. They share their hopes, dreams, anguish and fears with us. The community as an additional main character is revealed through everyday footage, landscape shots and still photographs.

John T. Davis (pianist/organist/vocalist) and Jim Heineman (saxophonist) are two Canadian jazzmen who have had to wage the war between the compulsion and the passion that they feel towards their music and the struggle that is involved with trying to make a living in the field of jazz music in Canada. John T. Davis is a Black musician from a poor rural environment. Jim Heineman is a white musician from a white middle-class urban environment. Brothers in Music begins by exploring the personalities, experiences and inspirations of these two very talented and different musicians and then moves on to examine the heart warming, brotherly relationship shared by these two musicians who have played together for over two decades. Through the musicians' words and original music "Brothers in Music" provides a rare and special look at the jazz scene in Canada.

AUGUST: OSAGE COUNTY

Drama

Language: English

Director: John Wells

Writer: Tracy Letts and John Wells Based on a Stage Play by Tracy Letts

Producer: Jean Doumanian, Steve Traxler, Jeffrey Richards, Jerry Frankel

Key Cast: Meryl Streep Julia Roberts Chris Cooper

Delivery Status: In Production

Year of Production: 2012 Country of Origin: USA

Three-time Academy Award winner Meryl Streep and Oscar winner Julia Roberts star in the "fiercely funny and bitingly sad" big screen adaptation of Tracy Letts' Tony Award and Pulitzer Prize winning play, AUGUST: OSAGE COUNTY. Coming on the heels of her latest Oscar win for The Iron Lady, Streep stars as Violet Weston, the sharp-tongued matriarch of the South's most dysfunctional family since Paul Newman and Elizabeth Taylor tore up the screen (and each other) in that other Pulitzer Prize-winning classic - Tennessee Williams' Cat on a Hot Tin Roof. Directed by John Wells, "August" begins on the night that Violet's husband of 30 years, Beverly, mysteriously vanishes without a trace. Beverly's disappearance draws the couple's three daughters, including eldest Barbara (Roberts), back to the family home, each returning with husbands and boyfriends in two to comfort their mother and help solve the mystery of what happened to their father. As with all families, home brings out the best and the worst in everyone, as each of the children settles back into their place in the unforgiving hierarchy of the family -- all amid the palpable heat of summer. Letts' work borrows its name from the famous Howard Starks poem, describing a month of August heavy with "heat-thickened air" and "no real breeze all day." And it's that stifling climate that will slowly force Violet and her family to face truths about themselves and each other until the secret of what happened that fateful night is revealed.

DEVIL'S KNOT

Suspense/Thriller

Language: English

Director: Atom Egoyan

Writer: Atom Egoyan and Paul Boardman

Producer: Paul Harris Boardman, Elizabeth Fowler, Clark Peterson, Richard Saperstein, Christopher Woodrow

Key Cast: Colin Firth, Reese Witherspoon

Delivery Status: Post Production

Year of Production: 2012 Country of Origin: USA

From Academy Award nominated director Atom Egoyan (The Sweet Hereafter), and starring Oscar winners Colin Firth (The King's Speech) and Reese Witherspoon (Walk The Line) comes the true story that would grip a nation for almost two decades, and that continues to be one of the most high-profile trials of all time. Based on the bestseller by Mara Leveritt, DEVIL'S KNOT recounts the trial conviction of teenagers Damien Echols, Jessie Misskelley Jr., and Jason Baldwin in the savage murder of three 8 year-old boys in the small town of West Memphis, Arkansas in 1993. Dubbed the so-called West Memphis Three, the defendants, each of them a social outsider, quickly found themselves up against a community crying out for justice, as well as a lack of physical evidence that led police to believe the murders were carried out as part of a satanic occult ritual. Colin Firth stars as Ron Lax in the film, a local private investigator and one of the first people to support the teens in their defense. Reese Witherspoon plays Pam Hobbs, the mother of one of the murdered boys. Together, they allow an uncompromising look at both sides of a town torn apart, and that will probably never be the same again.

ONE CHANCE

Drama

Language: English

Director: David Frankel

Writer: Justin Zackham

Producer: Simon Cowell

Key Cast: James Corden

Delivery Status: In Production

From famed producer Simon Cowell (American Idol), director David Frankel (The Devil Wears Prada, Marley and Me and Hope Springs) and writer Justin Zackham (The Bucket List, The Big Wedding), comes the amazing true story of "Britain's Got Talent" winner and future opera star, Paul Potts. The film stars BAFTA and Tony Award winning actor and comedian, James Corden, (TV's Gavin & Stacey theater's One Man, Two Guvnors), as the unlikely English tenor who stepped out of total obscurity to become an overnight sensation; his audition for "Britain's Got Talent" has received close to 100 million hits on YouTube, while the titular album - One Chance - reached #1 in over 13 countries and has sold over 3.5 million copies worldwide. But like most great underdog stories Potts' road to success was not an easy one. Bullied most of his life and always struggling to find an audience as much as to make ends meet, Potts was working as a mobile phone salesman and practicing his passion for Pavarotti in relative secrecy before going on to win the crown at Cowell's inaugural talent contest. Things start to change when he meets the love of his life in Julie-Ann, and their love story is the true heart of his amazing life and staggering rise to fame. But even with her devotion and support, Potts continued to struggle to be heard and his big break remained just out of reach. Until finally, with nothing left to lose, on the eve of his lowest moment, Potts will get one chance to turn it all around in an emotional landmark television moment that still continues to inspire. Joining the rarified ranks of other triumphant stories of those who struggle to find their own voices - like Oscar winners The King's Speech and The Artist - ONE CHANCE proves to ultimately be a story of the indomitable human spirit - and love.

As Islamic televangelist Amr Khaled travels throughout the Middle East, Europe, and the United States preaching his controversial message of Islamic renaissance, British filmmaker Mick Csiky examines the enigmatic phenomenon of the man Time Magazine named one of the "100 Most Influential People of the Year" in 2007. Over 40 million viewers watch Khaled's sermons every week as it's broadcast around the world via Arab satellite channels. Yet despite being hailed as everything from "The Anti-Bin Laden" to "The Rock Star Preacher" by Western journalists, Khaled still remains an enigmatic phenomenon to a large portion of the non-Arabic speaking world. Exactly what is Khaled's message, and why has his preaching polarized the Muslim world? As Khaled's popularity continues to skyrocket across the globe, director Csiky works to ensure that his subject's true philosophy comes through in no uncertain terms.

Director: Hala ALABDALLA

Producer: LES PRODUCTIONS DE L'OEIL SAUVAGE and RAMADFILM

During the two years of the production of the film – from the beginning of the summer of 2010 to that of 2012 – major upheavals occurred in the Middle East, especially in the two countries the film focuses on, Egypt and Syria. It was hardly surprising that a film on the freedom of expression and its repression in these countries should be drawn into the wake of the turbulent events of the revolutions under way there... By questioning Egyptian and Syrian cartoonists about their experiences before and after these major historic movements against despotism, the film attempts to gauge the new-found freedom that will also guarantee our future and our right of expression, and preserve us from censorship. The Syrian writer and journalist Samar Yazbek provides us with her insight and impressions from Damascus in the months preceding the Syrian revolution up until her exile in France five months later.

Documentary (87 MINUTE)

Language: Portuguese & English

Director: Marcelo Machado

Producer: Bossa Nova Films

Delivery Status: Completed

Year of Production: 2012 Country of Origin: Brazil

The documentary "Tropicália" tells the story of the cultural movement with the same name that roused in the late 60's in Brazil. Headed by the musicians Caetano Veloso and Gilberto Gil, the Tropicalist movement had its apogee in the popular music scene, with intense presence in Brazilian television, press and radio. The "Tropicalistas" confronted the cultural and political establishment with pop songs, mixing traditional Brazilian folk and the north-hemisphere's rock. Their controversial thoughts, music and behaviour resulted into prison and exile (in swinging London!) for its leaders. Through a rich research of archival material, unedited footage and the testimony of the group's protagonists such as Caetano Veloso, Gilberto Gil, Tom Zé, Arnaldo and Sérgio Dias (from the band Os Mutantes) and others, "Tropicália" shows their artistic and musical evolution and the contra cultural aspects of the creative tourbillon it created in Brazil.

Apart from this, there was also a movement of young rebels whose only raison d'être was the illusion of staying young, immortal and non-committal. In THIS AIN'T CALIFORNIA three kids discover their love of skateboarding on the cracked asphalt of the GDR – a madcap, even unacceptable sport that was perhaps so incredibly exciting because of its nuttiness. This punk fairytale created by a bunch of kids who luckily possessed sufficiently manic levels of energy to record their lives on Super-8mm film, shows us life in the GDR life as it has never been seen before.

"Marvel 14: super heroes vs. censorship" is a documentary that tells the tale of issue 14 of French comic book Marvel, who was censored and banned before publication. The Marvel comic books were at the time censored in France, being largely redrawn and cut for content. Both the left wing (American comics supposedly were symbols of the American imperialism) and the right wing (for the violent and immoral content) put pressure on the editors, even with death threats, to stop the mag. Issue 14 was not never released, but a few copy may have survived and it became an urban legend. The documentary also establishes the history of Marvel comics and widens to the censorship situation in the late 60s in France.

We follow the journey of Munio, Amos Gitai's father, born in 1909 in Silesia. At 18, Munio leaves for Berlin and Dessau to study the Bauhaus of Walter Gropius, Kandisky and Paul Klee. In 1933 the Bauhaus is closed and soon after the Nazis accuse Munio of betraying the German people. Munio is jailed, then deported to Basel. From there he leaves for Palestine. Once in Haifa, he starts his career as an architect, adapting the European modernist principles for the Middle East. The movie is a voyage searching for the relationships between a father and his son, architecture and movies, the history of a journey and intimate memories. Like in the movie CARMEL, based on director's mother, there is no chronological sequence of events. The story comes together piece by piece, as a poetical association of pictures, faces, voyages, real architecture and snippets of fiction.

Year of Production: 2009 Country of Origin: Israel, France, Italy

Amos Gitai creates a kaleidoscope of images from the distant Jewish past and the immediate Israeli present and brings us a deeply personal and resonant meditation on Jewish and Israeli identity. Through exquisitely composed long takes, he begins the film with his country's biography, especially during the Roman siege of Masada, and contrasts them to the young soldiers enlisting in Israel's army today making the film "a passionate expression of Mr. Gitai's anguish at living in a country in a continual state of war" (Stephen Holden, The NY Times). The cycles of violence are never-ending, but so are the bonds of family. With Jeanne Moreau narrating poems, letters, and journal entries, we are taken into a dreamlike state of overlapping images from different periods of Gitai's life and that of his mother Efratia, linking generations of Jews and Israelis within the warm embrace of memory.

How did a generation of post-war cinephiles manage to change the course of cinematic history? In 1948, a handful of cinema enthusiasts founded "Objectif 49", a "Cine-Club" in Paris whose existence would be as dazzling as it would be brief. A few months later, they came up with the idea of a showcase demonstration for art house films, thus giving birth, in the summer of 1949, to the "Festival du Film Maudit". Jean Cocteau played the leading role in this effort with support from Jacques Rivette, Eric Rohmer, Jean Charles Tacchella, Alexandre Astruc, Jacques Doniol-Valcroze and Pierre Kast... Ten years before the official birth of the New Wave movement, these young filmmakers, inspired by a fresh, new artistic vision, laid the foundation for today's cinema.

In 1932, writer Paul Nizan published "The Watchdogs", a book denouncing the philosophers and writers of his era for imposing themselves as guardians of the establishment behind a pretense of intellectual neutrality. The new watchdogs of today are the journalists, editorial writers and media-friendly experts who openly crusade for free markets and the maintenance of social order. With sardonic humor, The New Watchdogs lambastes these pundits posing as independent, unbiased, pluralistic forces of democratic opposition. The film convincingly and accurately exposes the growing threat of news being manufactured and deformed into a commodity by big business.

A documentary about the exile of Futaba's residents, the region housing the crippled Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant. The day after the magnitude 9.0 earthquake on March 11, 2011, Futaba locals heard the hydrogen explosion at Reactor Number 1 and were showered with nuclear fallout. In response, the Japanese government designated the whole town as an "exclusion zone" and 1,400 of the town's residents fled to an abandoned high school 250 kilometers away. The entire community, including the Town Hall office, was moved into the four-story building, making the residents nuclear refugees.
